The packaged food market is made up of dozens of segments, including cooking sauces & marinades, condiments, dressings, oils & vinegars, sweet spreads, snacks, baked goods, seasonings & spices, and more. Each has unique marketing challenges and packaging considerations ranging from government requirements to tamper-evidence to filling and dispensing specifications. Berlin Packaging has the brand and technical expertise in every packaged food market. We track the latest trends and technology to ensure our solutions not only meet technical and manufacturing requirements but exceed consumer expectations as well.

The new package definitely elevates our brand from our competitors. It's not only the look, but it feels perfect in the hand, it's easy to use, and the pour is easy to control so consumers get just the right amount of product each time. I'm sure the new design will have a direct impact on shelf presence, sales, and the retail buyers' decision to carry our products.
